TH. EMPEROR IN MOSCOW.

THE CORONATION CEREMONIES BEGUN. THE STATE ENTRY INTO MOSCOW-A SPLENDID SPECTACLE-GREAT ENTHUSIASM-REPORT OF A Great crowds gathered in the streets of Moscow yesterday to witness the formal entrance of the Emperor into the city. The decorations were elaborate, and the weather, on the whole, was fine. The Imperial procession started at noon, and traversed a distance of four and a half miles, the Emperor reaching the Kremlin at about 1:30. The scene was picturesque and brilliant. All along the route of the procession the Emperor was cheered with great enthusiasm. An unconfirmed report of an attempt to kill the Emperor before he left St. Petersburg is received.

Moscow, May 22 .- The State entry of the Emperor into Moscow took place to-day amid the cheers of thousands of spectators. The weather in the morning was fine. There was a slight fall of rain, however, during the march of the Imperial procession, but otherwise the affair was a complete

The whole reute of the procession from the Petroffsky Palace to the Kremlin, a distance of four and one-half miles, was crowded with people. At every point imperial stan lards were displayed and balconies were hung with guily colored materials and the Russian colors. The only foreign flags allowed to be displayed were those over the various Embassies, from which float the colors of the respective con tries. Along the road which the procession traversed there were a hundred Venetian masts, from which banners were flying. All the domes and spir s of the buildings in the city were decked with flags. Thousands of persons passed the night out of doors so that they might scenre good places to witness the procession. Mutitudes of others througed the churches praying for the safety of the Emperor. The dislomats and other dignituries who did not take part in the process.

occapied seats in tribunes along the route. The Emperor left the Petroffsky Palace at noon and reached the Kremlin at 1:25 o'clock. He wore the uniform of a general and was mounted on a splendid horse. He rode a little in advance of the four generals who were directly attending him. He maintained a calm demeaner, although he often smiled graciously in response to the wild en thusiasin which greeted him at every point The signal for starting the procession was the firing of artillery and the ringing of the bells of the Cathedral of the Assumption. On the Emperor's mounting his horse other salutes were fired.

THE ORDER OF THE PROCESSION. The order of the procession was as follows: The Chief Officer of Police and twelve gendarines; the private escort of the Emperor: the First Squadron of Cossacks of the Guard and one Squadron of Dragoons; mounted Asiatic deputations; representatives of the Nobility; Court servants, conriers and huntsmen; Masters of Ceremontes, in carriages drawn by six horses and followed by a large number drawn by six horses and followed by a large future of Court officials and their suite; Foreign Frances; the Members of the Council of the Empire; the Grand Marshal of the Court; a squadron of the Chevaler Gunvis; the Empirer on horseback, followed by Cone t Alexander Adlerberg; the Minister of War and at Aide-de-camp General; the Czarcvitch and the Grand Dukes George, Michael, Alexis, Paul and Constantine, and the latter's son Constantine, and others.

Constantine, and the latter's an observed cothers.

After all the male members of the Imperial family, who were on horsebach, came the Empress, accompanied by the Grand Duchess Xena Alexandrovan in a state carriage drawn by eight horses, a groom leading each horse. Equerit's rode on either side of the carriage, and mounted pages and grooms followed it.

Then came state carriages, the first containing the Grand Duchesses Marie Paulovina and Alexandra Josephovna; the second, the Grand Duchesses Olga Feodorovne and Matie Alexandrovna and the Duchess of Egipburgh; the third, Grand Duchess Vera Constantinovna, the Duchesses

Grand Duchess Vera Constantinovina, the Duchess of Wartemberg and the Grand Duchess Catherine Michaelovina; and the fourth, Princess Marie of Baden, Princess Eugenie of Oldenburg, and the Grand Duchess Helen, of Mecklenburg-Stellitz. Then there came a squadron of the Currassor degiment of the Guards, ladies of honor in carriages and a squadron of the Lancers of the Guard.

RECEIVING THE EMPEROR. The Mayor and deputations of tradesmen joined the procession at the old triumphal arch. Marshals of the nobility of Warsaw and several other distriets did homage to the Emperor at the Tverskata place. The Civil Governor of Moscow, the Judges place. The Civil Governor of Moscow, the Judges and other city officers received the Emperor at the Gate of the Resurrection, where his Imperial Majesty and the Grand Dukes and the Empress alighted and knelt in prayer before the picture of the Virgin. The Archbishop of Warsaw received the Emperor at the steps of the Cathedral of the Assumption with a cross and holy water. At this point the cheering of the people was perfectly deafening. The procession then entered the Kremlin.

A SPLENDID EFFECT PRODUCED. Cheer upon cheer followed each other incessantly from the densely packed multitude in the streets and from the thousands of people in the balconies and windows along the route of the procession The Empress was greeted with every mark of enthusiasm and loyalty. Her daughter, the Grand Duchess of Xenia, threw kisses to the people. The mounted Grand Duches formed a very ornilant group. The Asiatic deputations were also magnificently attired. The state carriages were splendidly decorated, and the whole effect was most gorgeous. The entire route was lined with troops. At the moment the correge entered the city a sainte of seventy-one guns was fired from Tsarskan place.

After entering the Kremlin, Court officials presented their Majestics with bread and salt on plates of silver and gold. When their Majestics retired, bells pealed and a saline of 101 guns was fired.

The Emperor were the broad blue ribbon of the Order of St. Andrew over his uniform. The Empress and the Grand Duchesses were national Russian dresses. The Empress was greeted with every mark

RUMORS OF A PLOT AGAINST THE EMPEROR. LONDON, May 22 .- A dispatch from Berlin to Reuter's Telegram Company says that a report, which is not yet confirmed, comes from St. Petersburg to the effect that previous to the departure of the Emperor for Mescow and explosion occurred under the washstand and in the fireplace in his dressing-room, but that nobody was injured, the Emperor and Empress being in the dining-room at the time.

General Roger A. Pryor sent a letter to The Tribuxe ever before seen in the city. No such celebration has been seen in Brooklyn since the opening of the water works in 1859. All the public buildings, all the structures in the business part of the city and many private houses will display flags and bunting by day, and by night will be brilliant with candles, gas, lamps and Chinese lanterns. Flags innumerable were sold yesterday and great quantities of colored fires found purchasers. The decorators complain that they have more work for Thursday than they can do. Many of the decorations will be completed to-day. In the majority of stores and offices in Brooklyn a neatly printed notice that business will be suspended at 11 a. m. or 12 m. to-

PRICE FOUR CENTS. NEWS FROM WASHINGTON:

GREENER AND FREDERICK DOUGLASS. BITTER PERSONAL CONTROVERSY OVER THE PROPOSED COLORED COVENTION.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Washington, May 22.-The controversy between the advocates and opponents of the proposed convention of colored men, for which a call was recently issued, has become very bitter and has been carried into the colmns of the Washington newspapers. Yesterday Frederick Douglass published a tart communication in reply to one signed "L" which Mr. Douglass said might been more appropriately signed "Liar." In a postscript which appears to have been printed by inadvertence, Mr. Douglass expresses the opinion that "L" and Professor R. T. Greener "are one and the same person."

Among other things Mr. Douglass said:

I expect to go into that convention and come out of it the same inflavible Republican that I have ever been, and I shall be very much surprised if I find myself alone in this respect. I hope, Mr. Editor, that your readers will not attach more importance to the clamor against holding the convention than it really deserves. There are traitors and informers among all oppressed and unfortunate people. Colored men are not an exception to the role. There are those among them who are never doing anything for the race themselves, but are ready to scream themselves hourse in opposition, when anything is attempted by others. I am not at all surprised when some of those for who in I have lived and labored litt their heels against me. Since the days of Moses such has been the fate of all men carnestly endeavoring to serve the oppressed and unfortunate. But this infirmity of oppressed people, just now consplexions in the conduct of the opponents of the proposed National Convention, will not deter me or those associated with me from going forward with the convention in question.

To day Professor Greener published a rejoinder in Among other things Mr. Douglass said:

To day Professor Greener published a rejoinder in which some of us have long known; the one velvety, deprecatory, apologetic-the other, insinuating, suggesting, damning, with a shrug, an elevated eyebrow, or a look of caution." In conclusion Professor Greener says: conclusion Professor Greener says:

I think now Mr. D. ought to have a convention; without it the Douglass trilogy would be incomplete—the banquet, the enumeripation celebration, the convention! I leasily, since I recail, Mr. Douglass has had rare experience in the convention business and "organ" line. There is quite a chapter here of unwritten history upon which some light imply the thrown. Had Mr. D. read "L's" letter, he would have seen that he says "I have received a good many letters complimenting Professor Greener for sounding the alarm, and warning the colored voters of this country of the snare that they were about to fail into." Mr. Editor, "L" has not, I imagine, received half the letters and papers I have—not one opposed, but all in favor of my views. I have sounded the alarm and have done my duty. Tray, Bianche and sweetheart may bark."

The opponents of the convention vigorously assert that it is a part of a deep-laid plot to commit the negro voters of the South as a body to the support of some particular man as a candidate for the Presidential nomination next year; and many of them believe that it is designed to secure a demand by the representatives of the negro race for the nomination of General Grant.

A SARCASTIC REPLY TO MR. DEZENDORF. THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ORDERS AN INVES-TIGATION. IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE. WASHINGTON, May 22.-The Secretary of the Navy has reconsidered his refusal to furnish for publication a copy of his reply to the letter of ex-Congressman Dezendorf, calling attention to violations of the law by Navy Yard officers and employes at Norfolk, Va. It will be seen from the Secretary's although he does not fail to intimate very broadly that the solicitude of that gentleman in behalf of

NO LONGER ON THE RETIRED LIST.

THE TELEGRAPH TO THE THIBUNG. Washington, May 22 .- It appears that other reared officers of the Army besides Colonel Badeau are affected by the decision which declares Colonel Badeau to be no longer entitled to a place on the retired st of the Army, with the rank and pay of Captain, Among them is Daniel E. Sickles, who was retired from the service with the rank of Major-General, April 14, 1869, on account of wounds received in battle, General Sickles was subsequently appointed United States Minister to Spain. When he learned of the decision in Colonel Badeau's case General Sickles wrote to Anditor Ferris of the Treasury Department, asking whether or not it would affect his own statis as a teried Army office. Auditor Ferris holds, it is understood, that General Sickles's caso is strictly municipous to that of Colonel Badeau.

MISCONDUCT OF ARMY OFFICERS.

[GENERAL PRESS DISPATCH.] WASHINGTON, May 22 .- Colonel Thomas F. Barr, Judge Advocate, United States Army, has been sent to Philadelphia by the Secretary of War to take note of the judicial proceedings now pending in that city in the matter of the alleged fraudalent divorce rethe latter's subsequent remarriage. No other action has yet been taken by the War Department but it is thought in Army circles here but it is thought in Army circles here that the proceedings in Philadelphia will lead to an official investigation, and that when Colone Barr returns and makes a report upon the case, a court-martial will be ordered to try Colonel Nickerson on the charge will be ordered to try Colonel Nickerson on the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a genticuman. It is generally understood here that the prominent Army officer who was recently reported to have sold duplicate or triplicate pay vouchers for the same month's pay to two or three banking offices in this city, is Colonel A. P. Morrow, who has for some time been attached to General Sucreman's staff. The matter has come informally before the War Department, and will, it is believed, result in a court-martial.
